GENERAL PREFACE

GENRELT FORORD

The Carl Nielsen Edition is an independent project under the auspices of the Music Department of the Royal Library, launched in 1994 on the initiative of the Ministry of Culture and funded by the Ministry and the foundation Carl Nielsen og Anne Marie Carl-Nielsens Legat, with further financial support for the publication of the individual volumes from a number of other private foundations.

The edition is for both practical and scholarly use, and is based on critical editorial principles. It comprises all Nielsen's finished works and completed individual pieces, and seeks as far as possible to reflect the works in the version last sanctioned by the composer. In cases where songs exist in several different arrangements by Nielsen, all the versions are published.

Each work is furnished with an introduction which gives a brief account of the genesis of the work and its place in the composer's oeuvre, and a Critical Commentary including source description, editorial emendations and additions, and important alternative readings. The editorial material is published together with the music.

The edition is divided into the three main series Stage Music, Instrumental Music and Vocal Music, each further divided into volumes; within each genre the works are ordered chronologically.

Series I, Stage Music

- Operas
- Incidental music

Series II, Instrumental Music

- Symphonies
- Other orchestral works
- Concertos
- Chamber music
- Piano and organ works
- Symfonier
- Andre orkesterværker
- Koncerter
- Kammermusik
- Klaver- og orgelværker

Carl Nielsen Udgaven er et selvstændigt projekt under Det Kongelige Biblioteks Musikafdeling, iværksat i 1994 på Kulturministeriets foranledning og finansieret af Kulturministeriet og Carl Nielsen og Anne Marie Carl-Nielsens Legat, hvortil kommer støtte fra en række private fonde til udgivelse af de enkelte bind.

Udgaven er til såvel praktisk som videnskabelig brug, tilrettelagt efter kritisk-videnskabelige udgivesprincipper. Den omfatter samtlige Carl Nielsens afsluttede værker og enkelsatser og søger i videst mulige omfang at afspejle værkerne i den af komponisten senest sanktionerede version. I tilfælde, hvor sange foreligger i flere forskellige arrangementer fra Carl Nielsens hånd, udgives alle versioner.

Hvert værk er forsynet med en indledning, der kort beskriver værkets tilblivelseshistorie og placerer det i den samlede produktion, samt en kritisk beretning, hvor der redegøres for kildesituationen, redaktionelle ændringer og tilføjelser og vigtige varianter. Den kritiske beretning udgives sammen med nodeteksten.

Udgaven er opdelt i hovedserierne Scenemusik, Instrumentalmusik og Vokalmusik med tilhørende opdeling i enkeltbind; inden for hver genre er værkerne ordnet kronologisk.

Serie I, Scenemusik

- Operaer
- Skuespilmusik

Serie II, Instrumentalmusik

- Symfonier
- Andre orkesterværker
- Koncerter
- Kammermusik
- Klaver- og orgelværker

Series III, Vocal Music

- Cantatas
- Songs and recitations with piano
- Songs without accompaniment
- Choral Pieces
- Songs arranged for vocal soloists and orchestra

Series IV, Juvenilia et Addenda

Editorial principles

The music is reproduced with no typographical indications of editorial additions or emendations. These are documented in the Critical Commentary. Typography, score disposition, genre names, and instrument names have been normalized in accordance with present-day practice. With a few exceptions, discussed in more detail in the Critical Commentary, the many additions and changes in Nielsen's works that have been made by friends and colleagues have been removed.

Articulation, dynamics, ties and slurs, execution markings and playing instructions have been normalized on the basis of analogies between clearly parallel passages. All such completions are documented in the Critical Commentary. Obvious writing and printing errors have been tacitly corrected.

Nielsen often notated horns and trumpets with key signatures. This practice has been normalized to a notation exclusively using accidentals.

"Muta in" in connection with the retuning of timpani and changes between two instruments (for example clarinet in A and B^b) have been tacitly normalized. This also applies to the combination of ties and slurs.

In Nielsen's manuscripts the dynamic markings are sometimes rather carelessly placed, and this is also reflected in the early printed editions. This has been tacitly adjusted. The same goes for missing punctuation in Nielsen's texts.

Clefs are normally given as in the main source.

Redaktionelle principper

Nodeteksten gengives uden typografisk markering af redaktionelle tilføjelser eller ændringer. Disse er dokumenteret i den kritiske beretning. Typografi, partituropstilling, instrument- og genrebetegnelser er normaliseret efter nutidig praksis. Med enkelte undtagelser, som der er gjort nærmere rede for i den kritiske beretning, er de mange tilføjelser og ændringer i Carl Nielsens værker, der er foretaget af venner og kolleger, fjernet.

Nodeteksten er normaliseret med hensyn til artikulation, dynamik, buer, foredragsbetegnelser og spilletekniske anvisninger således, at der er analogi mellem entydige parallelsteder. Alle sådanne kompletteringer dokumenteres i den kritiske beretning. Oplagte skrive- og trykfejl er stiltiende rettet.

Carl Nielsen noterede ofte horn og trompeter med faste fortegn. Denne praksis er normaliseret til notation udelukkende med løse fortegn.

"Muta in" i forbindelse med omstemning af pauker og skift mellem to instrumenter (f.eks. klarinet i A og B^b) er stiltiende normaliseret. Det samme gælder kombinationen af buer og bindebuer.

I Carl Nielsens manuskripter er de dynamiske angivelser undertiden placeret noget skødesløst, hvilket afspejler sig i de tidlige trykte udgaver. Dette er stiltiende justeret. Ligeledes er manglende, nødvendig tegnsætning i Carl Nielsens tekster stiltiende tilføjet.

Nøgler gengives normalt som i hovedkilden.

P R E F A C E

Carl Nielsen wrote music for no fewer than 22 plays performed in six different theatres, spread over a period of more than 40 years – from the earliest, An Evening at Giske from 1889-90, to the last, Grundtvig Easter Evening, performed less than six months before the death of the composer. So apart from the operas and symphonies, the theatre music is the genre that is most amply represented in Nielsen's overall oeuvre, and among the works are a couple of his most voluminous scores (Aladdin and Sir Oluf He Rides). In the present edition the theatre music has been published in four volumes in series I: volume 6, comprising the early works up to 1918; vol. 7, Sir Oluf He Rides; vol. 8, Aladdin; and vol. 9, the theatre music from the 1920s up to the death of the composer.

With nine works, The Royal Theatre in Copenhagen is the theatre to which Nielsen most frequently contributed stage music.¹ He knew the Theatre from the inside for better or worse, and his various relations with it were at times somewhat strained. In the years 1889-1905 he was employed as a second violinist in the Royal Orchestra, and between 1908 and 1914 as a conductor, after deputizing in this capacity for a short period around 1904-1905. He had to resign both these posts as a result of dissatisfaction with management decisions, and in 1919, in connection with the staging of Aladdin, he engaged in a public polemic on the role of the music in the performance.²

Three of the works were written for performance at the Open Air Theatre in Jægersborg Royal Deer Park north of Copenhagen.³ The establishment of an open air theatre in Denmark had been inspired by similar theatres in Germany and France, where the actor Adam Poulsen⁴ and the poet Lauritz Christian Nielsen,⁵ independently of each other, had attended

Carl Nielsen skrev musik til ikke færre end 22 skuespil, opført på seks forskellige teatre, fordelt over en periode på mere end 40 år – fra det tidligste, En aften på Giske fra 1889-90, til det sidste, Grundtvig-Paaske-Aften, opført mindre end et halvt år før komponistens død. Når der ses bort fra operaerne og symfonierne, er skuespilmusik således den genre, der er fyldigst repræsenteret i Carl Nielsens samlede produktion, og blandt værkerne findes et par af hans allermest omfangsrige partiturer (Aladdin og Hr. Oluf han rider). Skuespilmusikken er i nærværende udgave gengivet i fire bind i Serie I, henholdsvis bind 6 omfattende de tidlige værker frem til 1918, bd. 7 Hr. Oluf han rider, bd. 8 Aladdin og bd. 9 skuespilmusikken fra 1920'erne frem til komponisten død.

Med ni værker er Det Kongelige Teater i København det teater, til hvilket Carl Nielsen hyppigst bidrog med musik til skuespil.¹ Han kendte teatret indefra på godt og ondt og havde i sine forskellige relationer undertiden et noget anstrengt forhold til det. I årene 1889-1905 var han ansat som 2. violinist i Det Kongelige Kapel og mellem 1908 og 1914 som kapelmester efter i en kortere periode omkring 1904-1905 at have vikarieret som sådan. Begge de nævnte faste stillinger måtte han opsigte på grund af utilfredshed med ledelsens dispositioner, ligesom han i 1919, i forbindelse med opsætningen af Aladdin, førte en offentlig polemik omkring musikkens rolle i forestillingen.²

Tre af værkerne er skrevet til opførelse på Friluftsteatret i Jægersborg Dyrehave nord for København.³ Etableringen af et friluftsteater i Danmark var sket under inspiration fra tilsvarende teatre i Tyskland og Frankrig, hvor skuespilleren Adam Poulsen⁴ og digteren Lauritz Christian Nielsen⁵ uafhængigt af hinanden begge havde overværet sådanne forestillinger i such performances in the summer of 1909. The same autumn they drew up plans for the establishment of a similar institution in the Copenhagen area. They realized that the positive involvement of the press was necessary, so the editor of Politiken, Henrik Cavling,⁶ was drawn into the plans at an early stage. In the spring of 1910 a committee was formed to be responsible for the running of the theatre; Nielsen became a member and was most active in the dramatic sub-committee.⁷ Any profits from the performances were to be spent to "send Copenhagen council schoolchildren to holiday camps or for related purposes".⁸

The area Ulvedalene in the Royal Deer Park was well suited, since it was surrounded on three sides by forest, and on one side consisted of a high, broad slope that was laid out for the audience (with space for almost 4.000 people), all landscaped by the artist J.F. Willumsen.⁹ Several of the city's theatres also offered their services by lending costumes and props. In practice the theatre had neither walls nor curtain. The landscape was used as the scenic and acoustic backdrop, and presumably because of the special acoustic conditions Nielsen composed the music for the open-air performances for wind orchestra, whose sound penetrates better than that of string instruments when there are no walls and doors.

The Dagmar Theatre too occupies a prominent place in Nielsen's theatrical output: in the years 1890-1908 he composed music for five of the theatre's productions.¹⁰ This theatre was built in 1883 as Copenhagen's third private theatre – the other so-called 'second theatres' were Casino and The Folke-teatret – and existed until 1937. From 1889 on it succeeded in being a serious competitor to the Royal Theatre, inasmuch as at this time there was an easing of the restrictions that had hitherto limited the repertoire of the private theatres to popular comedies and operettas.¹¹ This more serious repertoire policy is reflected clearly in the productions for which Nielsen wrote music.

sommeren 1909. Samme efterår lagde de planer for oprettelsen af en tilsvarende institution i Københavnsområdet. De indså, at det var nødvendigt med pressens positive medvirken, så Politikens redaktør Henrik Cavling⁶ blev tidligt involveret i planerne. I foråret 1910 nedsattes en komité, der stod for driften af teatret, hvor Carl Nielsen blev medlem og især lagde sit virke i komitéens dramatiske udvalg.⁷ Et eventuelt overskud fra forestillingerne skulle anvendes til "Anbringelse af kjøbenhavnske Kommuneskolebørn i Feriekolonier eller dermed beslægtede Formaal."⁸ Ulvedalene i Dyrehaven var velegnet, da de på tre sider var omringet af skov, og på den ene side bestod af en høj, bred skrånning, som blev indrettet til publikum (med plads til hen mod 4.000 personer), alt sammen udtænkt af billedkunstneren J.F. Willumsen.⁹ Flere af byens teatre stillede sig desuden til rådighed med udlån af kostumer og rekvisitter. Teatret var i praksis uden mure og scenetæppe. Man benyttede naturen som kulisse og klangbund, og formentlig på grund af de særlige akustiske forhold komponerede Carl Nielsen musikken til friluftsforestillingerne for blæserorkester, der bedre end strygerinstrumenter kan klinge igennem uden døre.

Også Dagmarteatret indtager en fremtrædende plads i Carl Nielsens skuespilproduktion, idet han i årene 1890 til 1908 komponerede musik til fem af teatrets opstætninger.¹⁰ Dette teater blev opført i 1883 som Københavns tredje privatteater – de øvrige, såkaldte 'Sekondteatre' udgjordes af Casino og Folketeatret – og eksisterede frem til 1937. Fra 1889 gjorde det sig gældende som en seriøs konkurrent til Det Kongelige Teater, idet der på dette tidspunkt inndrædte en lempelse i de restriktioner, som indtil da havde begrænset privatteatrenes repertoire til overvejende at omfatte folkekomedier og operetter.¹¹ Denne mere seriøse repertoirepolitik afspejles tydeligt i de forestillinger, som Carl Nielsen skrev musik til.

The other theatres for which Nielsen wrote stage music were the Aarhus Theatre,¹² The Folk Theatre in Copenhagen,¹³ and the Odense Theatre,¹⁴ to which we can add the performance of the Prologue to Shakespeare on the Kronborg Castle hills in 1916.

The works in this volume have been distributed among the three editors as follows:

Lisbeth Ahlgren Jensen: Tove, Willemoes, Parents, The Wolf's Son and Midsummer Eve Play.

Kirsten Flensburg Petersen: Prologue to Shakespeare, Hagbarth and Signe, Native Land and The Liar.

Niels Bo Foltmann: An Evening at Giske, Snejfrid, The Fights in Stefan Borg's House and Atalanta

MUSIC FOR ANDREAS MUNCH'S PLAY AND EVENING AT GISKE

Nielsen's Prelude and Final Chorus for Andreas Munch's¹⁵ one-acter An Evening at Giske were probably composed around New Year 1889-1890, but the further circumstances of their genesis remain obscure. It can be established, however, that this period was marked by great events both in Nielsen's private life and in his musical career. In September 1889 he had been engaged as a violinist in the Royal Orchestra, and the same autumn he had applied for and been awarded the grant Det Anckerske Legat, which was to take him on his first major European journey over the next two years. Finally, it was in this period that his relationship with the sweetheart of his youth – the eight years younger Emilie Demant¹⁶ – ended. Although no statement about the music for An Evening at Giske from the composer appears to have been preserved, it is not difficult to imagine how he might have come by this task. In the years 1889-1891 the close friend of Nielsen's youth and his fellow student at the Conservatory, Vilhelm Rosenberg,¹⁷ was conductor at the Dagmar Theatre, and it seems highly likely that he hired Nielsen to write this music. It must have been

MUSIK TIL ANDREAS MUNCH'S KUERSPILEN EN AFTEN PÅ GISKE

Carl Nielsens Forspil og Slutningskor til Andreas Munchs¹⁵ énakter En Aften paa Giske er sandsynligvis komponeret omkring årsskiftet 1889-1890, men de nærmere omstændigheder omkring tilblivelsen fortører sig i det usvise. Det kan dog fastslås, at denne tid var præget af store begivenheder i såvel Carl Nielsens privatliv som hans musikalske løbebane. I september 1889 var han blevet ansat som violinist i Det Kongelige Kapel, og samme efterår havde han søgt og modtaget Det Anckerske Legat, som i de følgende to år skulle føre ham ud på hans første store europarejse. Endelig var det netop i denne periode, at forholdet til hans ungdomskærlighed – den otte år yngre Emilie Demant¹⁶ – afsluttedes. Skønt der tilsyneladende ikke er bevaret nogen udsagn om musikken til En Aften paa Giske fra komponistens side, er det ikke vanskeligt at forestille sig, hvordan han kan have fået denne opgave. I årene 1889-1891 var Carl Nielsens nære ungdomsven og konservatoriekammerat, Vilhelm Rosenberg,¹⁷ kapelmester ved Dagmarteatret, og det synes oplagt, at han har hyret Carl Nielsen til at skrive denne musik. Det må have været et attraktivt tilbud for den an attractive offer for the young composer, who would now presumably for the first time have a work for full orchestra performed. It is all the more surprising that he did not have more to say about the work. One possible explanation may be that as a newly engaged musician in the Royal Orchestra he had no wish to advertise his engagement with the competing theatre.¹⁸

An Evening at Giske was premiered at the Dagmar Theatre on 15th January 1890, and up to 4th February it was played a total of seven times.¹⁹ The play was not very well received in the press. Several reviewers pointed out that it came from the Royal Theatre's 'cast-off repertoire'²⁰ – one reviewer actually wished the play had been allowed to rest in peace.²¹ Although there were reviews in well nigh all the Copenhagen newspapers, Carl Nielsen's music was only mentioned in one, Morgenbladet (16th January 1890), where one could read the following short passage about the prelude: "For the play the Royal musician Mr Carl Nielsen had written a small prelude whose Norwegian character apparently had Grieg as its model." Apart from the performances mentioned here, it has been possible to document further performances neither of the prelude nor of the final chorus in the composer's lifetime, and it must be assumed that the work now lay dormant for many years.

It was only long after the death of the composer that the existence of this music became known again, in connection with the transfer of the music archives of the Dagmar Theatre to the Royal Library in 1943. On that occasion the then head of the Library's music department, Sven Lunn, discovered a package of orchestral parts marked "Carl Nielsen: En Aften paa Giske". He had the parts written out in score, and there emerged two pieces that had an amazing resemblance to the style of the young Nielsen. He further found the following note in the theatrical periodical *Saisonen*²² under the Dagmar Theatre's programme for January 1890: "C. Nielsen: Prelude to 'An Evening at Giske'". On this basis Sven Lunn concluded in an article in Dansk Musiktidsskrift that it must be a forgotten Nielsen work.²³ As for the final chorus, there are no contemporary printed sources that associate it with Nielsen; but it was unge komponist, som her, antagelig for første gang, fik opført et værk for fuldt orkester. Så meget desto mere kan det undre, at han ikke i højere grad har ytret sig om værket. En mulig forklaring kan ligge i den omstændighed, at han som nyansat musiker ved Det Kongelige Kapel ikke har ønsket at udstille sit engagement hos det konkurrerende teater.¹⁸

En Aften paa Giske havde premiere på Dagmarteatret den 15. januar 1890, og frem til den 4. februar gik det i alt syv gange.¹⁹ Stykket fik ikke nogen særlig god modtagelse i presse. Flere anmeldere hæftede sig ved, at det stammede fra Det Kongelige Teaters aflagte repertoire²⁰ – én anmelder ønskede ligefrem, at stykket havde fået lov til at hvile i fred.²¹ Skønt der var anmeldelser i stort set alle københavnske aviser, blev Carl Nielsens musik kun omtalt i en enkelt, nemlig Morgenbladet (16. januar 1890), hvor man finder følgende korte passus om forspillet: "Til Stykket havde Hr. Kapelmusikus Carl Nielsen skrevet et lille Forstykke, hvis norske Karakter øjensynlig havde Grieg til forbillede." Bortset fra de her nævnte forestillinger har det hverken været muligt at dokumentere flere opførelser af forspillet eller af slutningskoret i komponistens levetid, og det må antages, at værket nu henlå i en tornerosesøvn i mange år.

Først længe efter komponistens død blev eksistensen af denne musik efter kendt, nemlig i forbindelse med overdragelsen af Dagmarteatrets nodearkiv til Det Kongelige Bibliotek i 1943. Den daværende leder af musikafdelingen, Sven Lunn, opdagede ved denne lejlighed en pakke orkesterstemmer, som var betegnet "Carl Nielsen: En Aften paa Giske". Han lod stemmerne udskrive i partitur, og frem kom et par satser, der havde en forbløffende lighed med den unge Carl Nielsens stil. Endvidere fandt han følgende notits i teatertidsskriftet *Saisonen*²² under Dagmarteatrets program for januar 1890: "C. Nielsen: Forstykke til 'En Aften paa Giske'". På dette grundlag konkluderede Sven Lunn i en artikel i Dansk Musiktidsskrift, at der måtte være tale om et glemt Carl Nielsen-værk.²³ Mht. slutningskoret findes der ingen samtidige trykte kilder, der knytter det til Carl Nielsen, men det har i sin tid på Dagmarteatret været arkiveret once archived at the Dagmar Theatre under Nielsen's name in the same package as the prelude, which suggests that Nielsen was also the composer of this piece. Moreover, it was composed for the same orchestral ensemble and with the same style of instrumentation as the prelude. Finally, there are certain motivic resemblances between the two pieces, which further supports the authenticity of the final chorus. In this connection it should also be mentioned that in the above-mentioned article Sven Lunn states that it may be an incomplete set of parts, since it does not include bassoon parts. An investigation of other similar theatre music from this time²⁴ shows, however, that the orchestra could vary greatly from work to work – so the absence of bassoon parts does not necessarily mean that this is a torso. Nor does an analysis of the instrumentation seem to indicate that there were ever any bassoon parts.

It will be evident from the above that the preserved source material is extremely limited: apart from the set of parts from the Dagmar Theatre's music archives, there are only two manuscript first violin parts whose provenance is unknown. These parts may suggest that at some point the music was also played outside the Dagmar Theatre. The editorial work in connection with the present edition has in all essentials consisted of normalizations of articulation and dynamics.

The action of the play is set at Giske Manor at Søndmøre on an autumn evening in the year 1027. Giske, a small island on the west coast of Norway, was the seat of the richest and noblest of Norway's aristocratic dynasties, the Arnungs. The outlawed Stein has sought refuge at Giske, where the Lady Ragnhild – whom he has once helped – has given him shelter while the Lord Thorberg is at the court of King Olaf. When Thorberg comes back home, Ragnhild persuades him to observe the old laws of hospitality. But when she reveals that she has sheltered the outlawed Stein in his absence, he immediately breaks his promise. In the end King Olaf appears and settles the dispute, and the play ends with a chorus of tribute to the King.

under Carl Nielsens navn i samme pakke som forspillet, hvilket taler for, at Carl Nielsen også er ophavsmand til denne sats. Endvidere er det komponeret for samme orkesterbesætning og i samme instrumentationstil som forspillet. Endelig er der et vist motivslægtskab de to satser imellem, hvilket yderligere bestyrker slutningskorets autenticitet. I denne forbindelse skal det endvidere nævnes, at Sven Lunn i den omtalte artikel anfører, at der muligvis er tale om et ukomplet stemmesæt, idet det ikke indeholder fagotstemmer. En undersøgelse af anden tilsvarende scenemusik fra denne tid²⁴ godtgør imidlertid, at orkesterbesætningen kunne variere meget fra værk til værk – og således indicerer de manglende fagotstemmer ikke nødvendigvis, at der er tale om en torso. Heller ikke en analyse af instrumentationen synes at pege på, at der skulle have eksisteret nogen fagotstemmer.

Som det fremgår af ovenstående, er det overlevede kildemateriale yderst begrænset – ud over stemmesættet fra Dagmartrerets nodearkiv foreligger der kun to håndskrevne primoviolinstemmer, hvis proveniens ikke er kendt. Disse stemmer kunne tyde på, at musikken på et tidspunkt også er blevet spillet udenfor Dagmartrerets. Det redaktionelle arbejde i forbindelse med nærværende udgave har i alt væsentligt bestået i normaliseringer mht. artikulation og dynamik.

Handlingen foregår på Giske Gård på Søndmøre en høstabten år 1027. Giske, en lille ø på Norges vestkyst, var sædet for den rigeste og højbyrdigste af Norges ætter, Arnungerne. Den fredløse Stein har søgt tilflugt på Giske, hvor fruen Ragnhild – som han tidligere har hjulpet – har givet ham husly, mens husherren Thorberg opholder sig hos kong Olaf. Da Thorberg vender hjem igen, overtaler Ragnhild ham til at love at overholde den gamle gæstfrihedsskik. Men da hun afslører, at hun har huset den fredløse Stein i hans fravær, bryder han straks sit løfte. I sidste ende dukker kong Olaf dog op og får bilagt stridighederne, hvorefter stykket afsluttes med et hyldestkor til kongen.

In the Critical Commentary the following conventions are used:

- 1 “by analogy with” is used when something has been “added”, “emended” or “omitted” by analogy with another passage in the main source. The analogy may be vertical. When something is added “by analogy with” one or more instruments, it is understood that the analogy is with the same place in the same bar(s). Or it may be horizontal. When something is added “by analogy with” one or more bars, it is understood that the analogy is with a parallel place in the same instrument(s).
- 2 “as in” is used when something is “added”, “emended” or “omitted” to correspond to the same place in another source.
- 3 “in accordance with” is used in cases where there is no authoritative source, only a guideline – for example printed part material.

In the bar number column, the symbol “+” is used to indicate an upbeat to the bar in question.

The only complete source is the Dagmar Theatre’s set of parts (A). In addition there are two vl. 1 parts for the prelude (B), probably copied from Source A, since the rehearsal letters in B are given from the beginning, while they are added in blue crayon in A. The provenance of Source B is unknown, and it is not clear whether B was part of a complete set of parts for the prelude or whether it only served as duplicate parts for Source A. In both A and B a cut (bb. 89-100) is marked in pencil suggesting that the two sources were at some point used at the same event.
